Join us during Leopold Week, March 7-13, for a meaningful community reading event that invites us to reflect on our relationship with the natural world and explore our land ethic. This inspiring initiative is brought to you by the Ashland Public Library, the Ashland County Park District, and the Ashland Center for Nonviolence. Together, we will delve into the timeless wisdom of Aldo Leopold's "A Sand County Almanac," a nature writing that encourages a profound connection to the environment around us.

Throughout the event, participants will have the opportunity to engage with Leopold's work by reading passages aloud, allowing his words to resonate and inspire a deeper appreciation for nature. If you would like to read a passage, please inform us during your event registration.

Each attendee will receive a complimentary copy of "A Sand County Almanac" with a nature-inspired picture book available for the young explorers who attend. Participants of all ages can also partake in a delightful Storytime and craft session, fostering their love for the great outdoors. We will conclude with a nature walk, offering a firsthand experience of the beauty of nature. Don't miss this chance to join with fellow nature enthusiasts and celebrate the wonders of our environment.
